The Meaning Behind Our School

In recent years democracy is being taken less and less for granted. New meaning and deeper significance are being attached to the great American dream. There is growing realization that freedom is not something bestowed automatically upon each generation, but something which must be safeguarded continuously and exercised responsibly by every individual. Democracy has been thought of chiefly as a form of government rather than as a way of life. It is difficult to transfer our ideas of democracy in government, which center around voting, representation, and the common good, to other areas of living. Democracy implies many different ideas and opinions, each opinion entitled to the same amount of respect as the next, regardless of how complete the disagreement. Democracy involves abiding by the wishes of the majority in any group, or making such compromises as will seem best to meet the needs of all. Utter disregard for the worth and dignity of the individual in totalitarian ideologies has created renewed interest in,and concern for, the improvement of human relations. Thoughtful citizens now recognize that the very survival of democracy depends upon greater equality of opportunity for all persons, irrespective of race, creed, or color; that continued social, political, and economic discrimination against minorities will undermine and ultimately destroy democracy. In a world in which the people are becoming daily more dependent upon one another for their existance, the need for cooperative and peaceful solution or common problems is becoming more and more apparent. The recuring threats of war among nations and the tensions engendered by the conflicts among various groups within nations indicate clearly that peace will come only when people accept the necessity of, and achieve compence in, the arts of democratic and cooperative living.

Most people in the United States accept and treasure the values from which democracy receives its deepest meaning. They want to remain free. They want assurance that their children and their children's children will enjoy greater heritage of freedom. They want to live in a world in which the integrity and dignity of human life are respected. They want poverty, injustive, intolerance, and bigotry progressively eliminated from human relations. They want, above all, to live in a peaceful world. It is necessary then that everyone discover and understand more fully the relationship of the schools to these values. As this is understood the people will demand good schools.

Turtle Lake Coach Has 8 Lettermen

TURTLE LAKE.—Eight football lettermen are back at Turtle Lake High School as the Trojans prepare for the 1952 season.

Turtle Lake opens its season Friday here against Wilton.

Coach Leonard Wick, starting his second year at the helm of the Trojans, figures his club won't do "too bad" if the injuries are kept down.

Lettermen back are James Freborg, LaVern Haas, Ahart Hofer, Norman Schlafmann, Jerry Walcker, Alfred Bergo, Harland Hofer and Gordon Schlafmann.

Bergo is a junior, Harland Hofer and Gordon Schlafmann are sophomores and other returnees are seniors.

Others out with previous experience are Earl Alexander, Larry Levi, James Schumacher, Russ Krabinger, Richard Nathan, Carlyle Ockert, Billy Presser and Gary Falkenstein.

Completing the squad are Myron Carr, Richard Goven, Gordon Bergo, Jack Lakoduk, Byron Zingg, Charles Berget, Mike Gutensohn, Glenn Hanson and Franklin Philbrick. Keith Nelson is student manager.

Wick figures his line will average about 158 pounds and his backfield about 152. His big man is Ahart Hofer, 225-pound tackle.

Wick looks for defending champion Riverdale, Garrison and Elbowoods to be the teams to beat in the McLean County Conference.

PURPOSE OF NEWS ITEMS: This year's annual staff decided to use a few annual pages for pictures or write-ups of different things of importance that have happened throughout this years school term. The staff felt that this would be time and money well spent; because someday we'll look back at our school annuals and see pictures of what might have been the beginning of a great industry, or maybe even a Renaissance as far as North Dakota history is concerned.

Landslide Sweeps Eisenhower Into White House; Republicans Control Both Houses of Congress

History finally caught up with the Democrats, and the coalition that ruled the nation for twenty years now lies crushed beneath one of the most spectacular upsets since the Civil War.

In popular vote, the GOP won by about 5,000,000 and in electoral votes its ratio of victory was about four to one.

In winning election as the 34th President of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower cut deeply into every bloc that had made up the Democratic coalition, except the Negroes. He piled up spectacular votes in the big industrial cities of the North. He proved amazingly popular with organized labor. He ran strongly in neighborhoods that were predominantly Irish-American and Italian-American. And he won back the farm vote for the GOP.

Most important of all, he smashed the Solid South, almost certainly beyond repair. Virginia, Texas, and Florida, at least, never again will be one-party states.

So overwhelming was Ike's victory over Adlai E. Stevenson, in fact, that he swept Republican majorities into the House and Senate with him.

The Republican landslide was only partly the result of Eisenhower's popularity, though his popularity, even with longtime, devoted Democrats, could hardly be overestimated. Sooner or later, the Democratic coalition was bound to crumble. Many Republicans believe it would have fallen apart in 1948, had it been pounded hard enough.

The reason was the nature of the coalition. It was an alliance that included the extremes of conservatism in the Old South and radicalism in the urban North. It was brought together by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the days of depression and it started disintegrating during the Truman Administration in the days of postwar prosperity. Voters generally had grown tired of Democratic rule.

They were troubled by the war in Korea, which seemed like an endless bloodletting; by the spread of Communism in the world; by the draft; by high prices; by the revelations of corruption and favoritism in the Administration; by the suspicion that Reds still played an undercover role in the State Department.

Eisenhower promised to solve the problems that beset the nation, and the people believed in his capacity to redeem this promise. Looking to the past, the Democrats said: "You never had it so good." But the people were looking to the future and they wanted something from it which they didn't think the Democrats offered them.

They wanted, however big the order, restoration of peace to the world; an end to ever-mounting government expenditures and taxes; an end to careless morality in Washington; and at the same time a move to the right, away from big government and toward traditional concepts of a free enterprise economy.

The voters chose the future. And they chose Eisenhower and the Republican Party as its custodians.

1–How Great the Victory

Herbert Hoover swept 40 of the 48 states, but Eisenhower's victory over Stevenson nevertheless was far more spectacular than Hoover's over Alfred E. Smith, and far more significant. Hoover was running as the candidate of the majority party; Eisenhower was the standard-bearer of a party that had been in the minority for twenty years.

North Dakota might someday be known as a great oil producing area. One of the first wells to be dug was right southwest of Turtle Lake. Tioga oil wells were the first to produce. An oil refinery is being built in Mandan now during the summer of 1953.

The new addition will be to the left of the school.

We, as graduates of 1953, are glad to see the beginning of a project that will greatly improve our school. We know that all the students will greatly appreciate the many conveniences that this new addition will have to offer. Congratulations to those whose efforts of trying to make our school more convenient have not been in vain.

EDITORS NOTE

You've turned the last page of the book,
And we hope you were greatly inspired;
To turn back and take another look,
At the book, of which you'll never get tired.

A lot of hard work made this annual,
Work that was sometimes fun;
This work was often very gradual,
But now the annual staff's glad they're done.

As editor, I'd like to thank all helpers,
Who helped make this book a success;
If it wouldn't have been for these hard workers,
This book would really have been a mess.

First, I'll thank Jerry, my assistant editor,
He's done his job very well;
Many an answer I went to him for,
I sure think that he is swell.

The business managers, Gloria and Russ,
Sure did a good job too;
To get an ad, they'd make quite a fuss,
But got the money when they were through.

Our class editor was always on the ball,
Lois Bergo is her name;
When I'd call on her she'd never stall,
Without her, the staff would have been lame.

Doris was the editor of organizations,
Her work was always done;
And to her goes a big congradulations,
For her work and all the fun.

Verdeen is one of our editors too,
Editor of activities that is;
Helpers like her are very few,
Because she's really a whiz.

Next comes Keith ,the editor of sports,
Whose work was done with a smile;
He's interested in athletics of all sorts,
For which, he'd drive more than one mile.

We can't forget our photographer,
Gerald Walcker did this work;
To take and develop was his offer,
So, he shot many a jerk.

We had two advisors this year,
Mr. Falkenstein, the first of the two;
Then came Mac, without any fear,
And advised us until we were through.

Thanks to all other helpers too,
Who helped make possible this book;
A special thanks to the patrons is due,
For the special interest they took.

Now turn back and enjoy it again,
And through it all remember each senior;
To number our mistakes we'll never began,
But those there are, you can blame on the editor.
